

Bill Covington: Assistant Director of Development for Perimeter College of Georgia State University.

Bill Covington is a native Georgian, born on Peachtree Street and graduate of Georgia State University. Bill began his career with Eastern Airlines, then returning to Coca-Cola, a company where he had worked part-time while attending GSU. Bill worked on the Key Accounts Team at Coca-Cola, a company that encouraged community involvement in their employees. This allowed Bill to pursue his other passion, education. Bill ran and won election to the Coweta County Board Education where he served eight years as member and ultimately Board Chairman of one of the fastest growing public school systems in the country.

After leaving Coca-Cola in 2011, Bill returned to the education field and became a Development Officer with Georgia Perimeter College, a place he knew well from many years as a volunteer at the college and a place where he admired the people and their mission of reaching students that might otherwise have no access to a college diploma.
